Norco Primex 2015

The Australian Belted Galloway Association is the major sponsor of a site at the Primex Agricultural Field days (a three day event) to be held at Richmond Valley Events Centre, Bruxner Highway, Casino in northern New South Wales Thursday, Friday, and Saturday June 18 to 20 2015. Primex is the largest field day staged in northern New South Wales and attracts up to 40,000 visitors from all over New South Wales and Queensland.

The field day has over 400 stalls, covering all forms of agriculture, livestock and associated agricultural livestock services and lifestyle businesses.

Gates are open 9am to 4pm daily.

The Australian Belted Galloway Association site will be manned by four studs from the area which when combined have many years of experience in farming and raising cattle and all of whom will be only too happy to assist with all and any inquiries.

The studs taking part are Bryan & Marion Watts of Crystal Waters, Lisa Flyn of Cooee, Phill and Vicki Morrow of Dragonbridge and, last but not least, Troy Hepburn of Foxtail Hill who is a prospective new breeder to Belted Galloway. Troy is a junior breeder at 12 years-of-age and we welcome Troy to the breed. We anticipate having 6 to 8 animals on display and look forward to seeing many members and their friends. Please come along and say 'Hello', have a chat and join us for a refreshment. We would love to see you.

Ballarat Rural Life Expo 2015

The Ballarat Rural Lifestyle Expo 2015 was held on 11 April and the weather was next to perfect.

There had been significant pre-event advertising in the Weekly Times and Local Courier Newspaper. This event has established itself as a must see Rural Lifestyle Expo. It was bigger and better than the last years and continues to grow.

With the increased attendance, we were kept busy with lots of Belted Galloway inquiries. Anne Wilson and Cameron Woolfe organized with the other cattle breeders attending to have the cattle lead in a ring together, to "show off" the animals. Each breeder took the time to describe the attributes and characteristics of each breed to the crowd. Then Cameron described what the Show Judge would be looking for in the cattle and comparisons of the breeds. This drew a good size crowd. There were 8 breeders with 5 breeds of cattle on display. Belted Galloway, Dexter, Lowline, Santa Gertrudis and Maine Anjou.

The Galloway display was jointly manned by AGA and ABGA members and was again co-sponsored by both Associations sharing the cost. The Belted Galloways cattle on display were from four studs - Cumbria, Koralea, Grandview and Clan Woolfe. Thanks goes to the other Galloway breeders, Helen Daly of Tarxien Hill and Kerry Hazelwood of Pine Gully, who helped with the display on the day, fielding inquiries and handing out information brochures and Annuals. This was most appreciated.

Most inquiries came from small landholders wanting to know more about the Beltie stocking rates, feeding requirements, purchasing cows, steers, hiring bulls and animal registrations.

Dr Jim Hancock, who is a local vet, used one of the Belted Galloway cows in his demonstration of handling, health, halter training, parasite control, and husbandry. This was very informative and an added dimension to the cattle display.

There were many other speakers at the Expo on the day, covering subjects like, keeping poultry, bio-security risks in livestock, fire farm safety, growing fruit trees, caring for pigs, horse health and energy efficiency on farms through technology, effective maintenance, and choice of fuels and recovery of waste heat. Zoe Phillips is an award winning photographer with the Weekly Times and she was also on site to talk about her experiences photographing animals and people.

The Ballarat Rural Life Expo 2015 generated a lot of interest about Belted Galloway and it has enabled us to secure a couple more breeders.

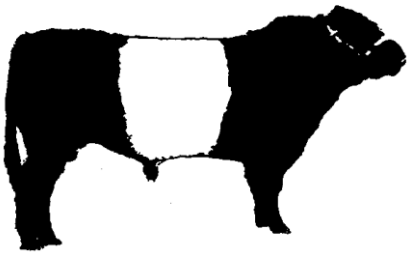
Belties Breed Better Beef



2015 BATHURST ROYAL

The judge for the day was James Milner of Rosedale Charolais Stud.

Although a few breeders took a break this year, breeders exhibiting at Bathurst Royal still turned on a great display of quality Belties. The future of this show as a major focal point for Belted Galloway remains secure.

Two new breeders were welcomed to this year's Royal, Carenne School and Peter Munday, both breeders being local to the area and each did a great job preparing and parading. Particular congratulations to Peter for winning Grand Champion Bull and Female, and subsequently Supreme Exhibit with the bull. Thank you to all exhibitors for providing an excellent exhibition of Belted Galloway. Also, a big thank you to the Galloway and miniature Galloway breeders who exhibited and contributed to the success of the show. Mention and acknowledgement must be made and thank you to Minto Galloways for donating the beef for the show barbeque. Belted Galloway and Galloway continue to have a healthy presence at Bathurst Royal.

World Galloway Conference 2016 – Gretna Green, Scotland

There are a few breeders in Scotland who have Bed and Breakfasts and have self-catering cottages. It may be that some of our breeders going to the World Galloway Conference to be held in Gretna Green would like to stay with some of these breeders, either before, during or after. It is anticipated that more accommodation options run by Galloway and Belted Galloway breeders throughout the UK will be included in future newsletters..

The first is Low Kirkbride Farm run by Joe and Zan Kirk who are 50 minutes drive from Gretna Green. Joe and Zan offer bed and breakfast and have an ensuite twin and an ensuite double room which are £32 per person per night (single occupancy is £35 per person per night).

They also have two self-catering cottages; the Byre and the Cheese House. The Byre can sleep up to eight people and comprises a family room, an ensuite double room and an ensuite twin room, with extra capacity available on the sofa bed in the studio. The Byre is £600 per week which includes linen, electricity and fuel for the underfloor heating and wood/coal burning stove.

The Cheese House self-catering cottage sleeps up to four people and comprises an ensuite family room with double bed and bunk beds, a living/dining room, a fully fitted kitchen and another bathroom. The Cheese House is £350 per week which includes linen, electricity and heating. Shorter breaks are available in the Cheese House at£50 per night on a self-catering basis.

For further information about the bed and breakfast please visit: http://www.lowkirkbridefarm.co.uk/ and for further information about the Byre self-catering cottage please visit: http://www.lowkirkbridebyre.co.uk/. For any booking enquiries please contact Zan Kirk at lowkirkbride@btinternet.com

There is also Clifton Farm run by Ann Bell of Clifton Hercules fame.

Oakwood Lodge sleeps 6 all on one level. Ashwood Lodge can sleep 6/8 as there is a sofa bed on the mezzanine level Also there are comfy camp beds if more people want to squeeze in! The charge would be £650pw for each lodge, which includes light, heat, linen and towels. Clifton Farm is about 50 mins to Gretna Green. Dumfries Show is only 15/20 minutes along the road from here and is well placed for visiting other Belted Galloway breeders in Dumfries and Galloway. The views are spectacular and include wall to wall Belted Galloways in the fields beside the lodges If you would like a rural retreat with wonderful views over the Solway to the Lake District beyond, this is it. For further information on these cottages go to the Australian Belted Galloway website (www.beltedgalloway.org.au) and go to the WGC page and click on the Pdf links.

IS IT FIT TO BE LOADED

This article has been taken from the MLA website (reference: http://www.mla.com.au/Cattle-sheep-and-goat-industries/Animal-welfare) and has been amended to relate only to transporting cattle. For the full article and other articles of interest visit the MLA website http://www.mla.com.au/Home.

A national guide to the selection of animals fit to transport. Revised edition 2012

Animal welfare legislation and livestock transport

The Australian Animal Welfare Standards for the Land Transport of Livestock (the Standards) define specific requirements in relation to livestock transport in Australia. The Standards are enforceable. It is an offence to load and transport an animal in a way that causes, or is likely to cause, it unnecessary harm. These Standards replace the individual state/territory livestock transport provisions of the Australian model codes of practice for the welfare of animals, so there are now the same rules nationwide for livestock transport. This Is it fit to load guide will help producers, agents, buyers, transporters meet their legal obligations under the new Standards.

About this guide

This guide has been developed to help you decide if an animal is fit to be loaded for transport by road or rail to any destination within Australia.

An animal is not fit for the journey if it:

•is not strong enough to undertake the journey
•cannot walk normally, bearing weight on all legs
•is severely emaciated or visibly dehydrated
•is suffering from severe visible distress or injury
•is in a condition that could cause it increased pain or distress during transport
•is blind in both eyes
•is in late pregnancy

If in doubt – leave it out!

The responsibility not to cause unnecessary harm still rests with the person in charge of the animal

Preparing livestock for transport

Preparing livestock for transport correctly is a vital element of any journey. Well-prepared stock travel better, are less stressed and associated animal welfare issues are avoided.

Steps for preparing livestock for transport:

•plan the journey including rest stops and inspections
•know who to contact in case of an emergency
•make sure the facilities including yards, races, loading ramps and vehicles are well constructed and will not injure livestock
•handle livestock quietly and with minimum force – stress is cumulative
•segregate animals appropriately (e.g. horned animals, mothers with young, etc.)
•rest recently mustered livestock prior to loading

It is the responsibility of the person in charge to ensure that animals are prepared correctly and will cope well with the entire journey.

Preparing livestock for transport- feed and water

Maximum time off water.

The Standards determine the maximum period of time that each species can be held off water during transport. See the table overleaf for more information. This period includes mustering and any time off water in yards, as well as the journey itself. But, these are maximum limits - certain classes of animals, such as pregnant or young animals, or conditions such as hot dry weather could mean animals need even more regular access to water.

Journey log.

Transporters, drivers and agents should always seek information about how long animals have been off feed and water before loading. If it is likely that the journey will take more than 24 hours, then the date and time when animals last had access to water and when they were last inspected must be recorded by the person in charge. Written information about who to contact in an emergency must also be provided.

Feed and water during curfews.

Dry feed such as hay but not green feed can be offered prior to loading even if water has been withheld. While food and/or water is on offer, make sure that there is enough space for every animal to access it, as shy feeders become an issue when space is limited. Consider giving electrolytes to animals during the preparation period as it may help prevent physical stress during a long journey.

Feed and water curfews

Class of animal	Max time off water	Required spelling period †
Cattle - Over 6 months	48 hours	36 hours
Calves -30 days to 6 months	24 hours	12 hours
Cows -Lactating with calves at foot	24 hours	12 hours
Cows - Known to be more than 6 months pregnant, excluding the last 4 weeks	24 hours	12 hours
Calves - 5 – 30 days travelling without mothers	12 hours maximum journey	18 hours

† the period of time that stock must rest and have access to food and water when the maximum time off water has been reached

What to do if an animal is unfit to load

If you identify an animal which meets any of the criteria on page two, then you must not transport it.

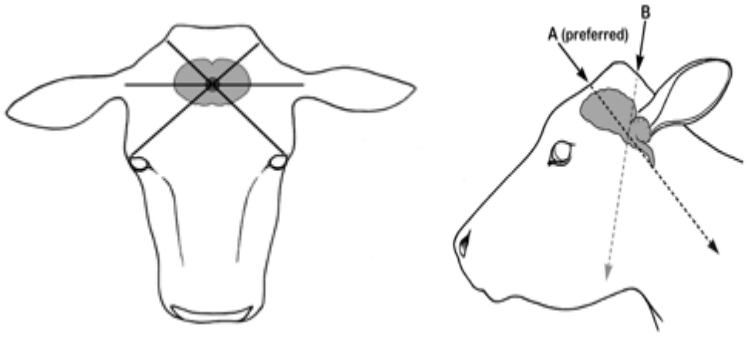
You can:

•treat the animal and transport when recovered and fit to load

•humanely destroy the animal, or

•consult a veterinary surgeon and then transport only under veterinary advice

The Standards illustrate the acceptable methods for humane destruction for each species. Humane destruction of cattle using a firearm or captive bolt. (A) indicates the frontal method and (B) indicates the poll method which may be used in an emergency if the frontal position is unavailable.



Make sure the animal is dead before you leave it. If in doubt re-shoot. Bleeding out is used to ensure the death of an unconscious but still living animal.
